FROM ACSO'S PRESIDENT

On behalf of the ACSO Board of Directors, the Santa Rosa Symphony Association and beautiful Sonoma County, I am pleased to welcome you to the 19th conference of the Association of California Symphony Orchestras - our state's unique organization representing symphony orchestras, musicians, leagues/guilds, boards and management. This lovely setting belies the seriousness of the conference theme, "Face the Music: Financial Disaster - Avoidance and Recovery", so that, while we enjoy the charms of the Redwoods Music Festival and the Robert Mondavi Winery in Napa, we are also dealing with the serious issues that concern the very survival of our own and other orchestras.

The conference committee has been tenacious in finding top-notch panelists and speakers to address these mutual concerns. Please thank them and the presenters when you see them. And remember, during the conference your contribution is equally essential: to probe ideas from these experts; challenge Ralph Black at the Earthquake Session and Black Coffees; pick one another's brains while socializing. Participate in every way possible. We are gathering in an open-forum/open-air setting. No matter how small or large your organization, let's all jump into the fray.

ACSO is working hard to represent you, not only at this conference, but throughout the year. Learn more about us and the services we provide such as networking, consultants, workshops, newsletters and job announcements. Your individual membership and the membership of your organization shape our survival too. Kris Saslow, ACSO's Executive Director, will be visible at this conference. Find her if she doesn't find you first. Let's get to know each other!

We look forward to your participation and then to your comments and evaluation following the sessions. I personally welcome you and hope to meet you as we "Face the Music" together. — Pauline Fisher

Guest Speaker
Nancy Meier, Manager Arts & Culture, San Francisco Chamber of Commerce

DON JONES

Don Jones, past president of ACSO and one of its first board members, is currently an Arts Consultant for Chevron U.S.A. Inc. The first recipient of the ACSO Arts Patron Award, Mr. Jones began his career as a graphic artist for Standard Oil Company of California. After an appointment to the Public Relations Department, Mr. Jones became involved with producing and writing scripts for the Standard Symphony Hour. He later served as Regional Public Relations and Advertising Representative for the Pacific Northwest, and then Coordinator of Communications for the company's Western Operations. Before retiring from this position in 1984, Mr. Jones coordinated the company's national arts support activities which included the Chevron Community Concert Series, a program he initiated and produced. During his career, Mr. Jones has served on the governing boards of numerous national, state, and local arts organizations and continues to serve on several national boards and committees, conducting workshops and serving as a panelist and guest speaker at arts conferences.

NANCY MEIER

Nancy Meier is manager of the Arts and Culture Council of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. During her tenure, Ms. Meier has directed the San Francisco Business Volunteers for the Arts and served as West Coast Regional Director for the program. She has coordinated a number of special events for the Chamber of Commerce and, in 1985, she received a special Award of Honor from the San Francisco Arts Commission. Ms. Meier began working with the Business Volunteers program in Seattle, establishing a program which eventually involved 130 volunteers assisting in over 65 organizations. She had previously served as Executive Director of the Washington State Artsplan developing the state's long-range arts programs, and was President and Director of the Arts Alliance of Washington State.

Ms. Meier is extremely active in the Bay area arts community, serving on numerous boards of directors, committees, task forces, and arts councils.

LANDSBERG & YOUNT

Masters of a repertoire from contemporary to classical, duo-pianists Landsberg & Yount's four hands on two keyboards are nothing short of dazzling. "They brought down the house," wrote Phil Elwood of the San Francisco Examiner of a recent performance. Since their meeting in a San Francisco piano dealership, Landsberg & Yount have pooled their talents, creating a stage show that combines technical wizardry with comic banter. An arranger, producer and music director, Norman Landsberg has toured extensively with the Pointer Sisters and Lenny Williams, and made numerous television appearances including "The Tonight Show," "The Helen Reddy and Flip Wilson Shows," and "Rock Concert." As a pianist, actor and director, Robert Blue Yount has been involved in almost every facet of the entertainment field. He has made numerous stage, screen and television appearances, and has toured extensively with Peter Nero.
